

Abstract:

The invention relates to a method for connecting dynamically loaded components, especially gas turbine components. According to the invention, at least two components (10, 11; 14, 15) to be interconnected are connected by means of laser powder build-up welding.